Edenville Energy makes final preparations for Tanzania drill programme

7:58 am by Ian Lyall

The rig will also be used to drill the Namwele deposit and Muze portion of the Rukwa Coalfield Project in South Western Tanzania.

Coal-focused explorer Edenville Energy (LON:EDL) is making final preparations for an extensive drill programme in Tanzania.

Contractors are expected to deliver a drill rig next week.

Work initially at least will focus on lifting some of 39 million tonne JORC inferred resource into the higher confidence measured and indicated categories.

The rig will also be used to drill the Namwele deposit and Muze portion of the Rukwa Coalfield Project in South Western Tanzania.

Edenville chairman Simon Rollason said: "This is the next step in our programme of upgrading and increasing our resource base at Rukwa.

"We are highly encouraged by the results of the maiden resource at Mkomolo announced in April of this year, and look forward to expanding on this figure during the planned exploration programme."
